

Library remodeling to change address

The U.S. Postal Service will assign a new address to the Camas Library next November, without the library moving an inch.

The address of the library, currently 630 NE 5th St., will be assigned the address of 421 NE Franklin St. when remodeling of the library is completed in mid-October of this year.

The library's main entrance will be moved from NE 5th Street to Franklin Street during remodeling operations, resulting in the change of address.

Total available funding for the library remodeling project is about $225,000. Woodbuilt Company was the lowest bidder for the project at $165,586, plus sales tax and $2,682 for inside painting.

The young people's library, formerly on the second floor of the library, has been moved temporarily to a meeting room in the basement of the east side of building.

A number of young volunteers and library staff helped move books of the young people's library to the basement last month. The young people's library will be moved to the old firetruck room in the library when that room is remodeled.

Librarian William Wightman's office has been moved from the main floor to the second floor permanently. The upper floor space will be used for book storage and files in addition to office space.

On the west side of the building workmen are now preparing to build an audio-visual room. New restroom facilities will also be installed on that side of the building.

An emergency exit will be added on the south side of the building, consisting of stairs down the side of the building. The remodeling has been undertaken to increase space and improve safety conditions.
